We are so closely blocked on all sides, that I think it better to send you a duplicate of this by a Kurd, who sallies out with our foot messenger to-night; you will, of course, be very anxious, and must write to all my friends, for I have not a moment to do so. We hear that Omar Pasha is between Batoum and Akhiska. I have written twice to Mr. E, first to tell him of our victory, and to-day to tell him that the enemy does not show a decided intention to quit his hold of us, although he has sent off much of his baggage. LETTER XXVII. Kars, October 12th, 1855. Many thanks for your letter of the 28th of August, which came in by a foot-messenger yesterday, through the Russian videttes, who still hold on to us with the tenacity of real Muscovites. My friends will have given you the news of our victory--one of the most sanguinary struggles of modern times--seven mortal hours of round shot, grape, and musketry, and the mountains of Armenia never before heard such music, and God forbid they ever should again! if the results are to be similarly estimated. The cholera has been scourging us fearfully, and I, in person, pressed on the jaded Turks in the task of burying their dead enemies, of whom 5000 were consigned to their soldiers couch. You can imagine the number of wounded. On the evening of the fourth day the last office was performed for the last Russian found on the well-contested field. The enemy thought to surprise us, but has been terribly taught that we did not begin on the 29th (Michaelmas-day,) to sleep with both eyes closed; for ten weeks I had been on the ground an hour before daylight. Every eye was on the stretch at the first dawn of day; their dark masses were watched in
